

THE DEFICIENCIES of mankind appear whenever our daily routine is interrupted.

Take the flow of traffic down a highway, for instance. While it's moving it looks like a collection of normal individuals going about their business — but stop it for an investigation, and you get an entirely different picture.

That's what happened at Fort Wayne, Ind., yesterday. An angry woman riding with her husband grabbed the car keys and threw them out the window. Her startled husband ran into two other cars — and the Associated Press reports that the drivers of all three automobiles were arrested.

Here's what that traffic stream looked like when police began investigating:

The husband: Arrested for reckless driving.

Driver No. 2: Charged with operating a car without a driver's license.

Driver No. 3: Arrested for improper car registration.

BUT A DEFICIENCY of a grimmer kind appeared in another story yesterday. The headline was San Pedro, Calif., where 18 persons have entered a hospital to undergo desperate medical experiments aimed to find an answer to one of humanity's most mysterious diseases.

They suffer from muscular dystrophy. Owing to some functional deficiency their muscles slowly waste away. Eventually they are crippled, their resistance so lowered that they succumb to diseases a normal person beats off — and in this sense muscular dystrophy is always fatal.

This destroyer takes a place alongside cancer and heart disease. It is one more problem that humanity is concentrating on with medical research and the funds to finance it.

The great scourges of past generations — tuberculosis, smallpox, typhoid — have been brought under control by advancing medical science; but of human ailments there will never be an end. Nor will there ever be an end to the appeals to citizens to help medicine to do something about finding a remedy.

Clay Urges U. S. to Send Men to Europe

Washington, Feb. 28 — (AP) — Lucius D. Clay, former U. S. commander in Germany, said today that sufficient Western European defense forces can be assembled in a year to make Russian aggression "seem unprofitable."

But to do this, the retired general said, the present course of re-arming Western Europe and supplying American ground troops to the North Atlantic defense force must be pursued "full speed ahead."

Clay appeared before the senate foreign relations and armed services committees. He urged that American troops be sent to Europe "without limitations" for the defense force being assembled by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

He sharply disputed the testimony of former President Herbert Hoover yesterday that to send troops before the Europeans themselves were fully prepared would be to invite a massacre.

"I do not subscribe to the theory that the Russians are supermen or super-fighters, or that Gen. Eisenhower, given a reasonable number of men would be overwhelmed and massacred," he said.

Clay had many face-to-face dealings with the Russian leaders while commander of U. S. forces in Germany and military governor of the U. S. zone — including operation of the Berlin air lift. He now is serving as a top assistant in the office of defense mobilization.

The joint committee is considering a resolution by senate Republican Leader Wherry of Nebraska, opposing the sending of U. S. troops to Europe until congress has fixed a policy.

The joint chiefs of staff have announced plans to send four more divisions to Europe to join the two already there.

Clay said he saw no reason to either overestimate or underestimate the Russian threat to Western Europe.

"I am convinced," he said, "that forces can be ready in a year that will make aggression seem unprofitable if we pursue the present course full speed ahead."

Clay said the Russians will start a war when they feel they are ready, and not before.

"If we move rapidly and collectively they may never be ready under their concept of readiness with odds so heavily in their favor as assure success."

By developing forces "which will make aggression seem unprofitable," Clay continued, "then we have every reason to hope for the stability which will bring peace even if that peace is an armed truce over the years."

Clay reported a gradual swing away from Communist political in-

Crow's Bill Brings Stiff Opposition

Little Rock, Feb. 28 — (AP) — A near-filibuster broke out in the Arkansas senate today over a proposal to establish a school of pharmacy at the University of Arkansas.

Sen. F. C. Crow of Hope called up his bill (SB357) but, after opposition forces started a lengthy wrangle, he won approval of a suggestion to make the bill a special order of business at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Leading the opposition was Sen. Guy Jones of Conway, who said he would speak against the bill as long "as I can stand on this floor."

Jones said some of the state's educational advantages ought to be parceled out to Arkansas' tax supported colleges other than the university.

The move for a state-owned school of pharmacy last week after the Arkansas Supreme court ruled the state's contribution of $100,000 toward operation of the college of the Ozarks School of Pharmacy, a church-supported institution, was unconstitutional.

Ozarks officials said that, without the state appropriation, they

Late Donations Push Polio Funds to $4,406.12

Campaign director, Eddie Holland announced today that the final total on this year's March of Dimes drive amounted to $4,406.12. While this is $593.88 short of the $5,000 goal, it is still more than was collected last year, and we feel that this year's drive has been a great success. Much credit is due all those who volunteered their time and effort to make this success possible, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank all who aided this year's March of Dimes, Mr. Holland said today.

Fulton Man Is Seriously Hurt in Accident

Leon Smith, 42, Fulton, was injured about 7:30 a. m. today when a tractor which he was riding was hit by an automobile, a mile west of Fulton on Highway 67.

Smith sustained a severe head injury. He was brought to a Hopon hospital where his condition was described as serious. The attending physician said it was too early to tell just how serious and that a wound of this kind had to be closely watched.

An automobile occupied by three soldiers and the wife and child of one, tried to go between the tractor and an oncoming transport truck.

The car hit the tractor practically demolishing it but none of the automobile passengers were hurt, it was learned.

The investigation was carried out by Miller County police.

U. S. Offers Prizes for Uranium

Washington Feb. 28 — (AP) — To pep up domestic prospecting for uranium the precious A-bomb material the atomic energy commission today offered new jackpot prizes as high as $35,000 for uranium hunters.

Applying such pay-off even to very low grade ores the AEC said the new bonus offer will not take the place of its long-standing — and still uncollected — prize of $10,000 for prospectors who deliver 40,000 pounds of very high-grade ore from a newly-discovered deposit.

At the same time the AEC announced it would pay substantially more than it has in the past for certain uranium-bearing ores of the Colorado plateau the richest known U. S. source of the metal.

The commission said it would continue to pay for acceptable uranium ore at so much a pound wherever it is found and that the jackpot "bonuses" would be paid over and above the regular payments.

Thus, a commission spokesman said, it would be possible for a prospector to sell 10,000 pounds of a certain grade of uranium for $35,000 — and then collect a bonus of $35,000 on top of that.

The new bonus payments are limited to the first 10,000 pounds of commission-accepted uranium produced at new mining locations but the AEC will pay off on any part of that. Bonuses will be graded according to the quantity and grade of the ore, with a maximum range from $15,000 to $35,000.

Defense Act Recognizes Parity Need

The Defense Production Act of 1950 providing for price control recognized the parity concept. This is the fairest available measure of equitable farm prices, when government control or price manipulation becomes necessary. This statement was made today by County Agent, Oliver L. Adams and Home Demonstration Agent Lorraine Blackwood.

If the old established standards of equality were abandoned, faulty as they may be, new standards would have to be established or improved by administrative edict.

Parity prices for farm production never increased until prices of goods bought by farmers have increased. Then the parity price goes up only enough to balance the increase in prices of things farmers buy.

Existing law prohibits ceilings below the parity price for a farm commodity. This is not inconsistent with other price and wage provisions of the law. The law also specifies the lowest level at which ceilings may be applied to wages and non-farm commodities. The minimum standard for both is the May 24 to June 25, 1950, level.

Furthermore, controls on wages, salaries and other compensation must not be out of line "with provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, or the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947."

Provisions of the Defense Production Act (price control) are based on certain standards contained in previous legislation — such as minimum standards for wages, working conditions for labor, and parity prices for farm products.

$10,000 Donation Helps to Build New Blevins Church Which Will Open on Sunday

The new Methodist Church building, Blevins, Arkansas, will be formally opened Sunday morning, March 4. Sunday School will be conducted at 10 a. m., followed by the morning worship service at 11 a. m., with the Rev. Cagle E. Fair, pastor of the church, preaching the sermon. The Youth Fellowship will meet at 6:30 p. m., followed by the evening worship at 7:30 p. m. All are extended a warm invitation to attend these services.

A gift of $10,000 honoring the Rev. H. M. Bruce, native of Blevins and deceased Methodist minister of the Little Rock Conference, helped make possible the construction of this building, which is now ready for dedication. Dedication services had to be postponed until summer because of the crowded schedules of Bishop Paul E. Marlin and W. C. Martin.

Construction on the one-story red brick building of Gothic architecture was begun in August 1950. Members of the building committee directing the building program in cooperation with the pastor include: J. R. Meaders, chairman; Mrs. Herbert M. Stephens, secretary; Mrs. W. Carl Brown; P. C. Stephens; J. J. Bruce; and M. L. Nelson, chairman of the Official Board. Finance committee members are: Herbert M. Stephens, chairman, Mrs. M. L. Nelson, Mrs. J. J. Bruce, H. M. Stephens, Warren Nesbitt, and M. L. Nelson. P. N. Porter, Hope architect, drew the plans and specifications of the building. Construction was carried on under the formanship of W. R. Smith of Blevins.

The new building has a sanctuary, pastor's study, nursery, rest room, kitchen, and five classrooms, three of which may be converted into a fellowship room by the use of folding doors. The other two classrooms, located at the rear of the sanctuary, are separated from the sanctuary by sliding doors and may be opened for overflow crowds.

The Blevins Methodist Church was organized in 1878 as the Marvin Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the first congregation worshipped in a frame building located on what is now known as the Duckett farm south of Blevins.

Mr. Charles E. Bruce, father of Rev. H. M. Bruce and of J. J. Bruce of Blevins, and Mr. William E. Blevins helped organize the church and were two of its first members.

Rev. H. M. Bruce was about thirteen years of age at this time, and it was from this church that he was later licensed to preach. This first building was later torn down and a new structure built in the same location. The new building was then moved to town.

Subsequently it was sold to the Church of Christ congregation and is still used by that body. The white frame structure which was destroyed by fire when lightning struck the steeple in January 1950, was erected in 1914, during the pastorate of the Rev. J. B. Dunn. Since the loss of this building, services for the Methodist congregation have been held in the Blevins High School Building. The present membership of this church is 113.

Construction of the red plastic hearts will be made today but the containers will remain in the stores until next Wednesday. It is hoped by the Beta Sigma Phi sorority, sponsors of the campaign, that those who have not contributed to this worthy cause will do so by March 7. Place your contributions in the plastic hearts on display in local stores or mail them to Heart, Box 291, Hope.

U. S. Men Move Within 31 Miles of Parallel 38

Tokyo Feb. 28 — (AP) — United American forces pushed the North Korean army into the battered eastern flank of the Red battle line today, and the Seventh division was within 31 miles of the northern parallel 38 — the northern limit of American forces in the east-central front.

Other division elements pushed westward from the anchor point of Panjin and linked up with the U. S. Second Division on vital lateral highway to Hsiao song 26 miles to the west.

The link-up broadened the front to 13 miles, the American control of the red supply route.

The Seventh Division, pushing six miles north of Panjin, reported the Reds were disorganized and moving in directions. One officer told the Correspondent Tom Stone the Reds might be attempting to retreat but "more likely" were moving "under confusion."

The officer said the Reds were surrendering in every increasing numbers. He said "they're getting a bellyful."

Amidong is 36 miles south of Changdong and some 40 miles inland from the east coast. American spotters reported Changdong may be an assembly point for Korean Ryus.

It was the major ground action on the rugged central front on Wednesday. South Korean amphibious forces were active both the east and west coast.

On the western front, a U. S. patrol entered Seoul and withdrew to allied lines a few miles from the Han river.

Truman Silent on Mink Coat in RFC Probe

Washington, Feb. 28 — (AP) — White House was silent today on President Truman's attitude toward a senate committee probe of how Mrs. Loretta Young, photographer in the executive files, got a $8,540 mink coat of her husband's dealings with those interested in RFC loans.

Presidential Secretary Short replied with a series of comments "to most questions to him about the matter at a conference."

He gave that answer when asked whether Mr. Truman still was asinine, a senate banking committee's report earlier this month that RFC directors yielded to influence from Mrs. Young, husband of the famous actress, and others. Mr. Truman called the report asinine at a conference soon after it was public.

The senate group itself had a one-hour recess of its public hearings, Chairman Fulbright indicated the purpose of the pause is partly to take time to decide on the future course of hearings.

He also indicated the subject won't demand that DAY, a lady lost Mr. Truman "the hell." President Truman's same time he said the committee's report asinine, and son should not testify.

Fulbright, told reporters Dawson's testimony probably not be worth it. He questioned the White House.

The senate group's purpose in its hearings is to indicate that Mr. Truman's taken when he directed the fact of the report.

At Short's news conference, a reporter asked whether Mr. Truman would keep Mrs. Young's White House accounts. Mrs. Young, who has been associated with the years, having worked for Mr. Truman, said she would not.

Asked whether Mr. Truman first gave her the mink coat, she replied: "I don't remember."

Short said the committee would not ask Mrs. Young's testimony. He said the committee would not ask Mrs. Young's testimony.

MT Vote Predicted for Week

Washington, Feb. 28 — (AP) — Sen. Johnson predicted today that the Senate may begin this week on a vote of the House's version of the bill to reorganize the military training service bill.

Sen. Johnson (D-Tex.) is chairman of the armed services subcommittee which held lengthy hearings on the measure and is the floor leader for it.

He is trying to cut off debate on the bill, but in addition to the extensive committee work, the bill has been gone over by both Democratic and Republican committees and is now being studied by the Senate.

Clay Urges

He said Western European nations now "are able to contribute to their own defense economically and physically" and have recognized that they "must contribute."

By congressional approval of the North Atlantic pact Clay said "it would seem that the disposition of our troops in the best interest of collective security has received the approval of congress."

He praised France for aiding in Korea while she was engaged in a Communist battle in Indochina and at the same time increasing her domestic defense budget.

Clay said Great Britain and other European nations also are increasing their troops and modern war equipment.

"Perhaps they have not moved as far and as fast as we have," he said. "They have moved in the face of many problems."

Any attempt to fix "a mathematical ratio" on troops each nation would supply "is impracticable," Clay said and might undermine gains in morale and efforts by Europeans.

Moreover, the time has come to realistically extend assistance in the form of military equipment to all countries in Europe willing to fight to preserve their independence," he said.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.) chairman of the foreign relations committee challenged ex-President Hoover's contention that western Europe isn't doing enough.

California Is Target of Prober

Los Angeles, Feb. 28 — (AP) — Crime probing Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) charged today he had failed to find any "adequate explanation" of why criminals from other states were allowed to obtain California liquor licenses.

He made the statement at the conclusion of last night's hearing by the senate crime investigating committee, which was devoted exclusively to testimony by William Bonelli, member of the state board of equalization which controls liquor licenses.

"The method of control has not been outlined with police records from obtaining liquor licenses," the senator said.

Kefauver's attack sparks several times from Bonelli, who accused the senator of intentional vilification and malicious interference.

"I am not going to stand by having my record smeared by unnecessary charges or malicious attacks," Bonelli said.

Kefauver's hearing also produced testimony that the life of Los Angeles Police Chief William Parker had been threatened and that he and his wife are still being faced with a tough job in running down the Korean Red sympathizers and their associates.

The senator also said the committee is some of the easiest to run.

DAR Opposes U. N. Treaty

Little Rock, Feb. 28 (AP) — The Arkansas Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution has adopted a resolution opposing the United Nations genocide treaty.

In its unanimous action yesterday the DAR called the treaty a "stepping stone toward world government."

The UN general assembly in 1948 approved an international convention against genocide — mass homicide. The treaty states that persons charged with genocide shall be tried only by courts of the country where the offense allegedly was committed — or by an international tribunal (still to be created) if its jurisdiction were accepted. The measure is now before the U. S. senate for ratification.

The DAR described the measure "as nullification of the protection of constitutional rights and in effect an international fair practices act."

Mrs. Louis N. Frazier state regent declared that "under its provisions Americans exercising their constitutional rights of free speech or free press could be charged with 'genocide' and forced to stand trial before an international tribunal on foreign soil."

harassed by anonymous telephone callers.

The mysterious assassination of Sammy Rummel, lawyer for Gambler Mickey Cohen, also came under the scrutiny of the committee.

Kefauver saw a "strange coincidence" in the fact that sheriff's officers met with Rummel only hours before the lawyer was slain.

One of the officers, retired Captain Al Guastl, told the committee his ability to buy a liquor license worth $12,000 for $325 could be construed as a "pay-off" for his campaign efforts in behalf of Bonelli.

Snow Storm Moves Across North Plains

By United Press

A big winter storm dumped heavy snows across the northern plains today and raised a threat of floods in some sections of the Midwest.

Blizzard conditions were reported in the Dakotas. Winds up to 30 miles an hour piled snow into drifts. Temperatures dropped sharply and forecasters said cold waves threatened some sections as the storm passed.

The storm was moving north-easterly and the weather bureau said it probably would move into Canada after sweeping the northern Great Lakes. They said however that it might bring colder weather to the New England area by the end of the week.

Thunderstorms hit the Midwest south of the snowbelt causing widespread rainfall in Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and lower Michigan.

The forecasters said heavy localized rains could increase the threat of floods in Iowa, Illinois and Indiana where streams are running full from the spring thaws.

Streams were falling in the Sullivan-Vincennes-Princeton area of Indiana today but rivers in Iowa and northern Illinois have threatened for several days to overflow their banks.

Today's storm spread snow over a belt stretching from the Dakotas eastward through Minnesota to northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan.

The senate also delayed action on a bill by Sen. Orville Cheney of Calico Rock which would exempt feed and fertilizer used by farmers from the state's sales tax.

The senate voted to consider the matter after it decides whether to increase the sales tax.

Sen. Lee Bearden of Leachville argued that the state could lose nearly a million dollars a year should Cheney's bill (SB387) become a law.

The senate yesterday passed and sent to the governor a bill (HB390) revising the plan under which state financial aid is allotted to local school districts.

True the Yugoslav chief-of-state is a dissenter against the Bolshevik tent that world domination rests in Moscow. He is a Nationalist and so refuses to surrender the sovereignty of his nation to Russia. That's why the Cominform has expelled him and branded him as an outcast.

But don't forget that Tito remains a Communist (though not a Bolshevik) and he maintains a dictatorship — a tight one. Ideologically there is nothing in common between Titoism and democracy.

There remains one saving grace in the situation. While there is no possible chance of Bolshevism and democracy living side by side in amity there is no apparent reason why Titoism and democracy shouldn't get along. This is true because the cardinal tenet of bolshevism is world domination by

Tito's Ambitions Are Yet to Be Settled, So It's Not Safe to Jump at Conclusions

By DeWitt MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

As the satellite revolt against Moscow's domination grows under the banner of "Titoism" one notes a tendency among the democracies to smile on Generalissimo Tito as the father of this Nationalist upheaval.

That tendency is natural on the basis that we don't like Titoism the more but that we like bolshevism the less. Moreover most folk have a sneaking admiration for a jack-the-giant-killer like Tito who dares so mightily against vast odds.

Still while the democracies welcome Tito's aid in the conflict against a common foe we shall be well advised not to jump to the conclusion that he is leaning towards them ideologically.

True the Yugoslav chief-of-state is a dissenter against the Bolshevik tent that world domination rests in Moscow. He is a Nationalist and so refuses to surrender the sovereignty of his nation to Russia. That's why the Cominform has expelled him and branded him as an outcast.

But don't forget that Tito remains a Communist (though not a Bolshevik) and he maintains a dictatorship — a tight one. Ideologically there is nothing in common between Titoism and democracy.

There remains one saving grace in the situation. While there is no possible chance of Bolshevism and democracy living side by side in amity there is no apparent reason why Titoism and democracy shouldn't get along. This is true because the cardinal tenet of bolshevism is world domination by

Moscow whereas the Tito brand of communism while a dictatorship doesn't profess to aim at global rule.

The dynamic Tito ranks among the outstanding leaders of his time. This 59-year old soldier-dictator is a peasant's son who pulled himself up by his bootstraps. He was born Josip Broz and assumed the picturesque name of Tito for the theatrical part he was to play.

Tito first came to Moscow's attention because of his brilliant work as a Communist guerrilla leader before World War Two. During the war he fought the Nazis as a leader of Yugoslav resistance forces.

That made him solid with Moscow — but not for long. He soon flung his colors of nationalism to the breeze and in 1948 the Moscow Cominform branded him as an outcast and called for a drive against Titoism.

The Yugoslav army one of the most powerful in Europe stood by their chief. The Yugoslav Communist party rallied to his support and he was the object of friendly gestures from the democracies.

There was a time when Tito showed signs of being too ambitious. For instance, Britain and America in 1945 accused him of obstructing the Allied military government of Trieste and asked him to withdraw his troops Yugoslav and American soldiers clashed. In 46 two unarmed American transport planes were shot down over Yugoslav territory. Five Americans were killed and nine were detained. An ultimatum from the United States cleared up this affair and brought an apology and indemnities for the men killed.

With greater international experience Tito has increased in stature. He has been substituting diplomacy for toughness and appears to want friendly relations with the democracies.

However, the proof of the plum duct is in the eating. It is unsafe to jump to sweeping conclusions about General Tito's ambitions.

'Fix' Scandal Takes Another CCNY Player

New York Feb. 28 (AP)—City College of New York — the "climberella" national champion of last year — has cancelled its remaining basketball games as collegiate sports' greatest scandal snared still another player the twelfth in five weeks.

The latest eager arrested on charges of taking bribes is Floyd G. Layne 22-year-old CCNY co-captain.

Layne vowed last week to carry on for his alma mater after three of his team-mates were arrested for "dumping" games.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan added an ironic twist to the scandal last night when he announced that Layne admitted sharing the "fixes" of three games with his already accused mates.

Hogan's statement came as the climax of a day of fast developments in the basketball bribery probe. It followed by only a few hours an announcement by CCNY

Fate of Small Business
Editor The Star: A spokesman for the Great White Father has decreed that small business must get war contracts or close.

This means two alternatives:

(1) that small business close.

Small businesses, in the aggregate, constitute big business which pays taxes and which act as outlets for big business which also pays taxes.

Close the little guys and where do the taxes come from?

(2) that some sort of Bureau is set up, with its inevitable costs and overhead, but with the possible result of channeling war contracts into small businesses. The latter might function for business as the Roster of Scientific Personnel functions to catalog, gather and assign a certain class of manpower.

In wartime, it would be a mere platitude to say that business small and large (composed of good citizens), would welcome the opportunity to serve the arsenal of democracy. But it appears that with their ponderous machinery by which they can be fitted into their place in the arsenal, they may be forced by material shortages to close, their skilled manpower dispersed, and the tooling become idle.

The remedy might be to put the limitations on supply at a slower rate, and even relax proration on some items, giving the small business a fighting chance to live until the bureaucracy can be set up to convert them to war production. And the bureaucracy will have to be provided if the gigantic potential of small business is to be realized.

It would appear logical to urge the necessity of keeping small business going (1) by providing governmental aid in procuring defense contracts and (2) by relaxing priorities until the defense contracts can be achieved.

Your publicity on this subject would be appreciated.

officials that the school would play no more cage contests this season.

The district attorney indicated that his investigation is far from over. Ten more detectives were brought into the inquiry and Hogan promised to dig into the sordid sports sellout just as far as necessary.

As of today there are 12 players or former players at four local schools accused of bribery to fix a total of 15 games over three seasons including the current one.

Two of the schools CCNY and Long Island university now have abandoned further basketball games this season.

Another of the schools Manhattan college announced yesterday that its officials were studying the "future of basketball" there.

Two Manhattan college players and three other persons were indicted Feb. 2 on bribery charges. Authorities said the two players admitted fixing three games last season.

Manhattan's last game this season was to have been tomorrow against CCNY.

The other CCNY game cancelled by that school's decision was scheduled for March 6 against New York university the fourth school caught in the scandal.

Long Island had announced abandonment of all intercollegiate sports but later said this stand might be re-examined.

In announcing Layne's arrest Hogan said the Negro CCNY player admitted receiving $2500 in bribes to fix games here against Missouri Dec. 9 Arizona Dec. 28 and Boston College Jan. 11

These are the same games that three other CCNY players — Ed Roman Ed Warner and Al Roth — are said to have admitted fixing

DOROTHY DIX Self-Centered Girl

Dear Miss Dix: Why don't parents realize the harm they do a child by bringing it up to be utterly selfish and self-centered? I am one of those cursed by a loving mother who reared me to believe that I was the most important thing in the world and that the whole universe revolved around me. All my life I have been encouraged to talk of myself, my plans, my clothes, my thoughts, my books, my everything, and now that I am grown I find that I cannot adjust myself to a world in which I am not only not the whole thing but am nothing. I know what's the matter with me and I am trying my damndest to induce my mother's twenty years' work of inflating my ego, but it is a hard job and I doubt I will ever be really successful.

Answer: You are right, Alice, in thinking that the greatest misfortune to have a child is to have a child who is self-centered. No other one thing she could possibly do could so unfit it for life, and if she hated her child instead of loved it she could do it no greater wrong.

To begin with, she dooms her child to certain unhappiness for no selfish person is ever satisfied or content. He never gets all he wants. Then the selfish and self-centered are always lonely. They have no friends. They are shut up within themselves and nobody takes the trouble to try to break through their shell. They have lived for themselves alone and so poor or heartbroken they are left when their time comes to be old or alone in their sorrow.

Can't Take It
The selfish and self-centered never know how to take the misfortunes of life. They have been taught to feel that they are immune from the troubles that are the portion of the balance of humanity. Their mothers have made them weaklings who lack the strength and courage to fight the battle of life.

Selfishness absolutely unfits any one for marriage. It is the selfish husbands and wives who are determined to have their own way about everything, who try to take all and give nothing in return, who think only of their own happiness and not of their mates' and eventually land in the divorce court.

Nothing is truer than that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Only the unselfish who strive to make others happy are happy themselves.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am engaged to a boy of whom my parents disapprove, and we are going to get married without their consent. He says that when we are married he will positively refuse to have anything to do with my family; that they have run over him enough and that he will never enter their house. But he will not object to them coming to ours, though he will never see them when they do, and that I can go to visit them as much as I please. I wonder if a marriage under these conditions can prove successful. Should I forget my family and think only of him?

Answer: You can't forget your family. No matter how devoted you are to your husband, there will always be this older love of the mother who bore you, the father who cherished you and the sisters and brothers with whom you grew up. They are a part of your being, so interwoven with your life that you cannot separate them from it.

This is what makes it so unfortunate when children marry against their parents' wishes and what makes it so vital that fathers and mothers should not oppose their sons' and daughters' choice of mates unless there is some drastic reason for doing so. Of course, there is nearly always a reconciliation after the marriage, but there is always a bar between the parents and the unwelcome son-in-law or daughter-in-law who never forget or forgive that they were not wanted in the family.

I cannot advise you to give up

Tackett Wants Trained Guards

Washington Feb. 28 —(AP)—Rep. Tackett (D-Ark.) wants personal assurance from General MacArthur that Arkansas national guard units now in Korea won't be sent into combat until fully trained.

Connally in Challenge to Mr. Hoover

Washington, Feb. 28 —(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover's contention that Western Europe isn't doing enough toward building its own defenses was challenged sharply today by Senator Connally (D-Mex.).

Hoover told senators yesterday the North Atlantic nations are "capable of putting up an adequate defense" on the ground "but they haven't done it."

He said there is "no justification" for sending American troops across the Atlantic, adding that he wants more than "purely paper" evidence the Europeans are willing to fight to protect themselves from possible Russian aggression.

Hoover expressed the opinion Russia could cross Europe to the English channel in 20 days and said plans to send more U. S. troops to Europe "will most likely lead" to land war with Russia.

Connally, presiding over the senate foreign relations and armed services committees hearings on the troops-for-Europe issue, told reporters he thinks the Western European nations have "done as much as we have."

"We haven't sent a single soldier over there except General Eisenhower," Connally declared.

Connally predicted this week.

"I confidently believe that send ground forces over there sin will not attack in the foreseeable future," the foreign relations committee chairman said.

Connally called Gen. Lucian Clay, former military commander of occupation forces in Germany for testimony today on the abilities of rearming Western nations and integrating them into North Atlantic defense forces.
